DETAILED ACTION

Rejections Withdrawn

1. Claims 1-4, 8-9, 11, 13-14, 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kreckel (5516581) made in the Office Action of 9/25/2006 has been withdrawn in view of the amendment filed on 12/28/2006.
2. Claims 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kreckel made in the Office Action of 9/25/2006 has been withdrawn in view of the amendment filed on 12/28/2006.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-4, 7-9, 1-14, 16 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 1-4, 7-9, 12-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Converse (2800215).

Converse relates to a laminate sheet (figure-3) comprising a long release sheet (15), an adhesive layer (11a) in continuous direct contact and coextensive with the release surface of the long release sheet (figure-1), a base material (10a) having a first surface and a second surface, the first surface being opposite to the second surface, the first surface being in continuous contact and coextensive with the adhesive layer opposite to the long release sheet, the base material being of a different material than the adhesive layer (col. 2, lines 45-64, wherein the base material can be fabric or paper and the adhesive can be rubber, etc.), and a protective material (14a) provided longitudinally on and in continuous contact with a generally peripheral portion of the second surface of the base material (figure-1), wherein the peripheral portion corresponds to a portion other than a principally used portion of the adhesive layer (because the protective layer 14a extends only partially along the width).

Figure-1 shows (for claim 2) that a central portion of the adhesive layer in the widthwise direction thereof is the principally used portion of the adhesive layer, while the protective material is provided on both sides of the second surface of the base material is spaced apart in the widthwise direction thereof the protective material extends across the width of the base material 10a and hence, is located along both side edges of the base material).

For claim 3, the protective material is in continuous contact with a generally peripheral portion of the back surface of the long release sheet (because the protective material 14a is in contact as shown in figure-1) wherein the peripheral portion corresponds to a portion other than a principally used portion of the adhesive layer.

Claim 4 is explained hereinabove in section for claim 2.

Art Unit: 1772

Regarding claim 7, the laminate is wound into a roll (figure-5), the protective material serves as a spacer between the base material and long release sheet.

For claims 8 and 13, the protective material has a band like shape and a uniform width (figure-5).

Regarding claims 9 and 14, an edge of the protective material is adjacent to the principally-used portion (figure-5).

For claim 12, the laminate is wound into a roll (figure-5).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claims 11 and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Converse.

Converse, as discussed above, fails to expressly teach that the thickness of the protective material is between 5 and 100 microns. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to provide Converse's laminate to have a 5-100 microns protective material because it is well known and conventional in the adhesive art to provide protective material covering the adhesive to have a thickness of between 5 and

Art Unit: 1772

100 microns, based on optimization through routine experimentation, for minimizing cost as the protective material is discarded as waste.

Conclusion

8. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
